Catarrh
IS a blood disease. Until the poison is expelled from the system, there can be no cure for this loathsome and dangerous malady. Therefore, the only effective treatment is a thorough course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla—the best of all blood purifiers. The sooner you begin the better; delay is dangerous.
"I was troubled with catarrh for over two years. I tried various remedies, and was treated by a number of physicians, but received no benefit until I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A few bottles of this medicine cured me of this troublesome complaint and completely restored my health."—Jesse M. Boggs, Holman's Mills, N. C.
"When Ayer's Sarsaparilla was recommended to me for catarrh, I was inclined to doubt its efficacy. Having tried so many remedies, with little benefit, I had no faith that anything would cure me. I became emaciated from loss of appetite and impaired digestion. I had nearly lost the sense of smell, and my system was badly deranged. I was about discouraged, when a friend urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and referred me to persons whom it had cured of catarrh. After taking half a dozen bottles of this medicine, I am convinced that the only sure way of treating this obstinate disease is through the blood."—Charles H. Maloney, 113 River st., Lowell, Mass.

TO A GLOVE.

Go, virgin kid, with lambent kiss
Salute a virgin hand;
Go, senseless thing, and reap a bliss
Thou dost not understand;
Go, for in thee, methinks, I find
(Though 'tis not half so bright)
An emblem of her beauteous mind
By nature clad in white.

Securely thou may'st touch the fair,
Whom few securely can.
May'st touch her breast, her lip, her hair,
Or wanton with her fan;
May'st coach it with her, to and fro,
From masquerade to plays.
Ah! couldst thou hither come and go
To tell me what she says!

Go, thou, when the morning cold
Shall nip her lily arm,
Do thou (oh, might I be so bold!)
With kisses make it warm.
But when thy glossy beauty's o'er,
When all thy charms are gone,
Return to me—I'll love thee more
Than e'er I yet have done.

Tricks of the Birds.

"I was much amused one afternoon," says an observant friend, "by a little family scene on a twig of an elm tree, where a fly catcher had her tiny brood of five, just out of the nest, all perched in a row. She was feeding them, and the little dots took their rations with great content as often as the mother caught an insect and flew back with the morsel to each open beak in turn. The regularity with which she kept account, feeding one after another, in exact order, from top to bottom of the row, was very interesting. Presently one small chap grew impatient, and while the mother was away fluttered over and crowded himself into the place next to the bird last fed—exactly as if he had planned to get the next fly. He sat there, looking very sober and innocent when the mother returned, but she saw the trick at once, and gave the fly to the right bird, whisking the interloper (as I fancied) with her wing as she passed him, by way of cuffing his ears. Probably he was the rogue of the family, and she knew him too well."—Boston Transcript.

When Liszt Lived in a Flat.

Wrapped in his dressing gown, and with feet incased in slippers, Franz Liszt was sitting comfortably one evening in his arm chair, ready for work and inviting inspiration. On the floor above, in the apartments of a banker, a noisy musical soiree was in progress. Polonaises had succeeded waltzes, and nocturnes had followed polonaises, when suddenly the door of the salon opened and Liszt entered, still wrapped in his dressing gown. The astonishment of the company may be imagined. With slow steps Liszt walked toward the piano, and the young key pounder who was sitting at it quickly left his place. Liszt sat down at the instrument, carelessly swept his fingers over the keys as if to prelude, and then suddenly he shut down the cover and put the key in his pocket. And immediately, with the same tranquil air with which he had entered, he went out and returned to his room, where he could work at his ease.—San Francisco Argonaut.

At a Maine Funeral.

A Maine clergyman, who evidently is somewhat interested in the matter of funeral reform, writes: "Some time ago I attended a funeral which took place on the 'outskirts of civilization.' At the close of the services, as usual in the country, an invitation was given to the audience to 'view the remains.' After they had done so the relatives of the deceased went forward to take their last look at the familiar features, and naturally were much affected, some of them sobbing and crying in an audible manner. When all were again seated the person who had chargo of the funeral arose and remarked, 'We will now allow the friends a few minutes to git control of their feelin's,' shen resumed his seat, while the silence was only broken by the sound of sighs and weeping, which gradually died away. It struck me as an innovation upon the usual funeral customs, but no one there seemed at all surprised."—Lewiston Journal.

A Large Hydraulic Riveting Plant.

An immense hydraulic riveting plant—the largest ever made—has been built in London for an engineering company in Holland, and is to be employed on marine boilers. The riveter has a gap 12 feet deep, closes its jaws with a power of 200 tons, and is capable of closing rivets up to 3¼ inches in diameter. A traveling crane, 50 feet high, is designed to raise and manipulate a boiler weighing anything up to 50 tons. The crane is operated by two engines, steam for which and the powerful pumps giving hydraulic power for the riveter's great accumulator is supplied by two steel boilers, each capable of doing duty equal to about 130 indicated horse power.—New York Telegram.

Behind Time.

Some people go through life behind time. If they say they will come at 3, they mean half-past 3; and when they finally put in an appearance they do it leisurely and good naturedly, and are mildly surprised if you insinuate that you are displeased. When they die, though, their friends will be avenged, because they will probably reach the gates of heaven ten minutes behind time—and find them closed.—West Shore.

He Understood the Old Man.

The little boy had pounded his finger, and immediately set up a terrible hullaballoo. His father remonstrated with him, saying that he was no longer a baby and should act like a man.

"But," said the youngster, between his sobs, "if I act like a man I'd swear, and then you'd lick me!"—Exchange.

He Is Going to Stick to Him, Too.

Matron—You appear to be very fond of your little playmate. It is pleasant to see such love among children.

The Bigger One—Yes'm; he's got er penny to spend.—Life.

Trials of Mail Smuggling.

"I have known," said Deputy Ben Armstrong at the postoffice, "of whole suits coming in letters. You smile? I will explain. A garment that has been cut to fit a customer can be sent by piecemeal. We discovered one-half a trousers leg in a big letter once, and we decided to lay for the rest of the suit. Sure enough, eight big, thick letters followed, addressed to the same man. Our first idea was to send for the man and compel him to pay duty, but then the joke was too good and had to be played to its legitimate conclusion.

"We sent him a piece of the pants, a piece of the vest and a coat sleeve."

The deputy went on to say that on the following day the young fellow came in, all of a perspiration. He was expecting some foreign mails from "Lunnon, don't you know," and at least five letters were missing. He was told to come on the following day and the letters might be found.

He came, and Postmaster Van Cott forced him to open in his presence the three letters they had discovered, and out came the dutiable goods and the swell had to foot.

"But," concluded the deputy, "these were not all the letters, and we made him worry for two weeks over the missing pants leg and one little coat tail, on all of which he finally paid duty."—New York Journal.

A PERPETUAL MOTION PUMP.

Converting the Rolling Sea Waves Into Power for Pumping Water.

Underneath the pier of the Bond Wave Power company at Ocean Grove, N. J., a mammoth iron egg floats upon the top of the waves. In mild weather the egg bobs up serenely, rising to a height of about fourteen inches above the dead level of the sea, but when the weather is rough and great rollers come rushing in the egg rises forcefully upward five feet or more. It cannot get loose, for it is made fast to the pier by long, strong arms of iron. Up from the top of the mammoth egg a rope runs, and after it has passed over a pulley it stretches on shoreward, and at last enters a wooden building situated upon the beach. In the building is a pump, and the rope is in connection with it. The pump is lifting about 3,000 gallons of water a minute, raising it distances equivalent to the height of the waves.

The explanation of the apparatus and the work it is doing is that Mr. N. O. Bond, whose namesake the Bond Wave Power company is, has successfully completed an experiment undertaken primarily to determine if it were possible to make the ocean, by the motion of its waves, pump enough of itself into Wesley lake to make that lake a body of salt water. There are people living in Asbury Park and Ocean Grove who, considering that the sources of the water of Wesley lake are in the swamp lands, judge that the lake is to some extent a health menacing body of water, and they have for some time wished that it might be salted. Mr. Bond says that he will have no difficulty in making Lake Wesley salt, and he expects to do it. He says that he is perfectly satisfied that his new wave machine will not only do the work which it was especially devised to do, but he is also assured that it will be found a valuable machine for doing other things which need to be done economically.

He says that the machine is strong enough to work comfortably in the roughest weather and that it is built with an especial view to making it run with very little supervision. He says that the wave gate which is in use as the motive power of the street sprinkling system at Ocean Park ran all through the winter of 1889-90 without getting out of order, and that its operations were not in the slightest interfered with by the great storm, which, it will be recalled, was spoken of as "the greatest storm for thirty years." The wave egg, Mr Bond says, will be as little liable to disarrangement by heavy weather as the wave gate was.

The new machine may be used wherever waves rise and fall, and there need not necessarily be a pier to hold it to its work. It may be kept in place by piles quite as well as by a pier, for, while the force of a great wave is immense, it is not so exerted upon the egg as to give a shock, such, for example, as the shock of a cannon ball.

The wave egg may be made as its uses may demand. The one in operation at Ocean Grove has a major diameter of ten feet, a minor diameter of seven feet, and its weight, conjoined with the arms by which it is fastened to the pier, is about two tons. The length of the arms is thirty-three feet.—New York Times.

ROASTING A MINING TYRANT.

How the Men at the Khedive Lode Were Revenged at Lightning Speed.

In the mountains the miners frequently make their descent into the valleys by using a piece of "quaking ash" bark as a toboggan, but oftener rely on the tenacity of their heavy canvas overalls.

To some this method of transportation may seem absurd or impossible, but it is a fact nevertheless; men do go down the fearful slopes on the soft snow from the top of a two mile ridge in that manner faster than they ever did on a sled when a boy.

At the Khedive lode the miners had long borne a grudge against the superintendent, an overbearing ignoramus; so they swore they would get even with him some day.

The Khedive was located just two miles above the old government road leading to Gothic, at a bend, called "The Crook," and it required an hour's hard climbing on foot to get up to the mine from there.

One morning the superintendent came as usual to "inspect," as he termed it, but really to curse and rant around because the men could not make $100 ore yield $1,000.

The miners were just about tired of his tyranny and several suggested the propriety of giving him a pounding. However, Providence, who sometimes advocates the cause of the poor miner as well as that of the rich nabob who owns the property, came to the men's assistance at this critical juncture.

The obnoxious superintendent was expecting some important instructions from headquarters, and gave orders that if a telegram came to dispatch a clerk on horseback until he reached "The Crook," and there to discharge his pistol.

While tearing around, cursing the miners as was his wont, suddenly a shot rang out on the clear air and, looking down into the valley, all saw a messenger waving a paper.

The anxious superintendent was in a fix; he wanted that telegram in a hurry, but knew that the steep trail would demand an hour's hard work to reach there.

At this moment the wag of the crew stepped up to him and offered a big iron scoop shovel, suggesting that if he sat in that he could go down the hill quickly and safely.

The superintendent had often seen the descent made on the snow as stated, but he did not see the roguish twinkle in the man's eye as he took the proffered implement.

His trousers were thin, so grasping the handle and sitting in the concave part of the shovel, he shot down the declivity; faster and faster he went until he fairly flew.

His seat by the terrible friction grew warmer and warmer as he sped recklessly on, but there was no stopping until the bottom was reached. He was literally roasted; but the miners had their revenge.—Kansas City Globe.

Metal in Bookbinding.

Metal has for some time been very advantageously used in the binding of books as a substitute for cardboard. A special preparation is first necessary, and the leather may be bent and straightened again without perceptible damage, a course of treatment that would destroy cardboard covers. The metal is covered with any material that taste may dictate, and the finished book shows no difference in appearance excepting in greater thinness of the cover, which is always desirable.—New York Telegram.

They Made a Better Article Themselves.

Woman (to drug store clerk)—Have you an article called a two cent postage stamp on sale?

Drug Clerk (mechanically)—We sometimes keep it, but I think we are out of it just now. There is very little demand for it. Quite inferior, I assure you. Now, we make an article of our own that—oh, it is a postage stamp you want. Certainly; here is one. Have it charged?—Texas Siftings.

FADS OF THE BATHERS.

SOME WAYS OF STEAMING THAT BEAT THE TURKISH BATH.

A Newspaper Writer Is Put Through a Process Which Makes Her All the Colors of the Rainbow—An Ordeal Which to the Uninitiated Is Akin to Torture.

The fads of progressive New York women will kill me yet. Last week I took a "pack," and I am nearly dead. Lost twenty pounds and the power of locomotion for twenty-four hours. My lips and eyelids turned electric blue and my complexion is a pale green with ecru mottling. I wanted some medicine—a big dose—with a diet of lettuce, prunes, Graham rolls and hot water to see if I could put down the rebellious billiousness of my skin and put on a silver gray gown. I went to see the bathing mistress in the Hoffman house, who used to steam and knead the Jersay Lily and who did several hundred dollars' worth of grooming for the beautiful Duchess of Marlborough. She told me that I "ought to get packed."

"Where to?" I asked.

"Good looks! You can come here for a night or I will go to your house and give you a pack that will make your hair curl."

I gave her my card and made arrangements to be ready for her two days later.

Her parting command was: "Take a five meal fast to rest your system, and you will be the color of a lily when I get through with you." She did not say what color or what kind of a lily at the time, but I have since learned that the model she had in mind was the tiger lily.

THE "PACK" DESCRIBED.

I took the fast, and the day she arrived I was as hollow as a pipe stem, and the weakness of the traditional cat was muscular vigor compared to the general goneness of my interior. A small mountain of comfortables and blankets was collected, my bed was stripped and covered first with a rubber and then a pongee sheet. Over this was laid a wet sheet wrung out of boiling water in which I was folded like a prehistoric mummy.

The sensation was a little smart at first, and I had a lurking fear that the original hue of whiteness was being scorched from my spinal column. Satisfied of my mistake I relapsed into a state of passivity and the mistress of the bath transferred the mountain of blankets from the floor to my bed. Then she put a cool, wet napkin on my head, and there I lay with the weight of Atlanta's on my already caved in anatomy and every pore in my body streaming like a country pump. I tried to think I was having fun, for it was a day off and it has always been my motto to make my own sunshine.

Do what I could with my thoughts I felt the blood pumping into my brain and making violent and forcible efforts to escape. The stately mistress of the flesh brush made me keep still, changing the cold cloths on my head, slipped morsels of crushed ice down my throat and encouraging me by frequent reiterations that I was doing well and would have a beautiful color. I stayed in the pack three hours and perspired until I thought there was nothing left of me but the last breath. Then I dropped off of something—I don't know just exactly what—and when I was about to get a glimpse of heavenly things with a lot of short waisted early empire girls and small dimpled boys in feather trimmings floating about in atmospheric nonchalance I was rudely shaken and told to open my mouth. That ended the pack.

THE SENSATIONS AFTERWARD.

I was dosed with French brandy, rubbed with alcohol, polished off with a pair of bath mitts that had the grain of radish graters and put to bed again between warm sheets.

The packer gave me a cup of bouillon, a chop, a roll and a glass of claret, and stayed with me until I finished the first morsel of food I had tasted in fifty hours. Bidding me keep quiet and stay in bed a day or two she relieved me of a $5 bill I had been saving for a crimson parasol and went off. When I looked in the glass I saw a reflection that beggared the horror portrayed by the impersonators of Violetta and Camille in their last scenes. I was a sort of ox heart red with a mottling of yellow fever and black plague patches done in the fashion that Limoges vases are under glazed. My eyes were on fire, the lining of my lids was white and green, my nostrils were pinched and my lips shriveled and were onion blue in tint.

Briefly, I was a horror. I looked like a resurrection. Mentally I was as idiotic as the ushers in the Bible wedding. But I had been "packed," and there is some satisfaction to a crack brain to know that she has one less fad in the gamut of fooldom to investigate. I have given up the ideal of a gray frock and buckled down to a diet of rare roast beef, boiled onions, rice pudding and vegetable soup, for until I recover some of my lost flesh I have no use for anything but a Spanish scarf and an ulster.

But will you believe me when I tell you that these packs are taken regularly by the fashionably progressive women of New York every day in the week? It's a fact.—New York World.

A Host's Thoughtfulness.

Brown (of Philadelphia)—Come right in, old fellow. Your room is ready and everything necessary to make you feel completely at home is prepared.

Jones (of Pittsburg)—Hope you haven't taken any trouble on my account.

Brown (heartily)—Very little, but that little will count. Have had four dozen cable car gongs hung under your window and hired a boy to bang them every day and all night.

Jones (overjoyed)—Bless you, old boy! Your thoughtfulness is simply delightful.—Pittsburg Bulletin.

Ninety-six Feet of Snowfall in Colorado.

Did you ever stop to think and figure up how much loose snow actually falls in the course of an average mountain Colorado winter? If you have, didn't the amount amaze you? At Kokomo in 1884-5, by actual daily measurements, something like ninety-six feet of the beautiful fell between Nov. 1 and June 1. Of course it kept on settling all the time, and when spring opened up there wasn't more than six or seven feet on the ground. The snowfall at Kokomo is generally twice or three times what it is at Dillon, yet the amount that fell here during the winter of 1889-90 sounds like a big yarn, but the figures given below are absolutely correct and were carefully recorded daily by Mr. Pratt at Ryan Gulch, just north of town.

Amount of snowfall, gauged at a point one mile north of Dillon, between the first day of November, 1889, and May 10, 1890: November, 38 inches; December, 81 inches; January, 81 inches; February, 41 inches; March, 70 inches; April, 22 inches; May, 17 inches—making a total of 20 feet 10 inches. About eight-tenths of this snow fell during the night time, and nearly one-half of it was very damp, settling rapidly as it fell. These figures seem preposterous, yet Dillon is not much of a place for snow either, and quite less of the beautiful than any other town in the county.—Dillon Enterprise.

Curious Signature of Columbus.

Of the sixty odd millions of people in the United States all except an insignificant portion of the "odds" have heard or read the wonderful story of Columbus and his discoveries. It is doubtful, however, if sixty odd thousand of this vast aggregation ever saw a copy of the curious signatnre used by the discoverer of the Americas. In his will the great Christopher says: "My heirs shall sign only with an S with an X under it, and an M with a Roman A over it, and over than are S and a great Y with an S over it; with its lines and points—as is my custom—he shall only write 'The Admiral,' whatever title the king may have conferred upon him."

The usual form of this signature, with "its lines and points" as mentioned in the will, was as follows:

.S.
.S. A .S.
X M Y
Xpo FERENS—El Amirante

Why the periods were used at the sides of the Ss and not before and following the other letters has been the subject of much discussion. The initials in a straight line are "S. S. A. S. X. M. Y.," which Professor Becher, recalling the fact that it was to Isabella or Ysabella that Columbus owed his chances of carrying out his plans, reads them as: "Servidor Sus Alteza Sacras Jesus Maria Isabel." Which would be about as follows if translated into good United States English: "The servant of their sacred highnesses Jesus Mary and Isabel." The last line Professor Dewitt translates as "Christ Bearing (Christopher) the Admiral."—St. Louis Republic.

A Memory from the Plains.

I saw a girlish looking woman holding her husband's arm as both stood enjoying the gorgeous spectacle on the platform in the Madison Square garden the other night. I could not help conjecturing what a flood of memories would have risen to her mind had some one rushed into the amphitheatre and shouted the single word "Injuns!" The couple were an army officer and his wife, and, though you may not all know it, that means that more than once he has been pledged to shoot her at an instant's notice.

It is the rule—the humane law—on our plains that when the savages are on the warpath and a husband and wife are traveling in their country the husband shall kill the wife the moment it becomes evident that she must otherwise fall into the hands of the redskins. Terrible as it is to think of slaying your wife (and only fancy what noble women those wives out there must be) no man would hesitate if he knew that by doing so he could save her from indignities that make death at once a trifle and a joy.

Fancy the situation—if you can put yourself in such a place. As you ride through the wilderness, perhaps with a guard of cavalry or only as part of a wagon train, the declaration of war comes with a rattle of rifle shots from some rocks or grove ahead. Every spur is pressed home, every horse leaps forward, every gun is seen to, and—your wife reins in beside you and says: "Now, remember! I rely on you."

After that one would imagine a ballet in New York would seem quite tame.—Chatter.

The Old Adam.

It is told of a good old fashioned parson in one of the hill towns of western Massachusetts that he gave the following advice to his son, who was about to come to New York to begin a business career: "My son, of course it is always wicked to fight, and as a Christian minister I must warn you against it. But at the same time if you should ever find yourself in a fight—mind, I say, find yourself in a fight, with no way out—always see that the right man is whipped." "But, father," replied the lad, "how shall I know who is the right man?" "The other man, of course," said the old gentleman. "In every crisis of life something must be taken for granted, and in a fight you must always assume that the other fellow deserves to be thrashed." This advice, similar in spirit to that given by Shakespeare, indicates that there may be a good deal of unregenerate human nature even in a quiet country parson.—New York Tribune.

A Conductor's Hard Life.

A street car conductor of a calculating turn of mind said the other day that during ten years of service on the Fourth avenue line he had been poked with parasols and umbrellas about 75,000 times. It is a woman's way to poke the conductor in the ribs with her parasol when she wants the car stopped. This particular conductor estimated that he had averaged about twenty pokes a day for every day of actual service.—New York Times.

A Bit of the Middle Ages.

A curious survival of the Middle Ages was put into practice at Guernsey to stop the public auction of household goods which was disapproved of by the eldest son of the family. The formula uttered by the son is as follows: "Haro! Haro! Haro! A l'aide, mon Prince. On me fait tort!" The sale ceased instantly, and the matter will now come before the royal courts in due course.—Notes and Queries.

The Ideal Suburban Site.

Stating it directly, the best work enables us to approach by a drive upon one side, alight at an entrance porch, enter by an entrance hall, advance thence into the hall, and through it out upon the veranda, and so on upon the lawn. This is the simple result, and the reason is as simple. The entrance is for access; the hall, veranda, lawn and the prospect beyond belong to the private life of the house. Tradesmen or visitors, however welcome, cannot be dropped into the midst of the family group. Even the welcome guest wishes to cross the threshold and meet the outstretched hand and cordial greeting within. Even Liberty hall must have its defense.—Bruce Price in Scribner's.

Struck Six Times by Lightning.

There is an old three story tenement house in Randolph, Mass., that is known the country round as the "lighthouse." If we sauntered now where we used to go,

The independent republicans opposed to Delamater have opened headquarters at 931 chestnut street, Philadelphia. George E. Mapes is chairman of the committee. They will soon begin an aggressive campaign.

Hon. S. P. Wolverton has been named for congress by Northumberland county, which with Columbia, gives him half the district and makes it certain that he will be nominated. We expressed our preference for Mr. Wolverton some time ago, and urged his nomination in the event of Mr. Bucklew's not being a candidate. He is a man of ability and activity, and he will represent this district with great credit to himself and his constituency.

Some of our esteemed contemporaries outside the county are predicting warm times in Columbia county politics this fall. They seem to be under the impression that there is to be a revolt of some kind, and that things are going to be turned topsy-turvy, but we are at a loss to know upon what their surmises are based. The whole ticket nominated by the Democrats will be elected by at least the usual majority. There were a few disappointed ones, as there always is after the convention, but there has been no intimation from any reliable source of a bolt, or an independent candidate for any office. Where, then, are the "warm times" coming from? There will be great enthusiasm here over the Democratic state ticket, as the campaign progresses, and the local ticket will be warmly supported, with perhaps a little cutting here and there, but Columbia will come up to the polls in November with her usual majority for the Democratic ticket.

For Congress, Hon. S. P. Wolverton of Sunbury, was nominated. This gives him two of the four counties of the district and he will be nominated by the conference, as he is the second choice of Montour county and will probably receive the instructions of Sullivan when they hold their county convention. The district is from three to four thousand democratic, and of his election there can be no doubt. Senator Wolverton is so well-known to the people of this county that it is not necessary to tell our readers who he is as he is acquainted, personally, with a majority of the people of the county. For many years he has been one of the most prominent attorneys in this section of the State. For ten years he served in the State Senate, leading the Democratic side of the house. He is in everyway qualified for the position and we predict his election by the largest majority ever given in the district and his holding a position in Washington among the leaders of his party.—Sunbury Democrat.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.

Washington, D. C. Sept. 1, 1890.

Senator Edmunds has exposed the cloven republicans foot by his resolution for a Congressional recess, instead of adjournment, from September 19, to November 10. Having by various methods succeeded in getting a date set for the disposal of the tariff bill—the most unjust financial measure of the age—the republicans now propose that Congress shall meet again after the Congressional elections in order that it may proceed to do what it does not dare to do before those elections. This action of Mr. Edmunds was taken because Mr. Harrison refused to assume the responsibility of calling an extra session for the sole purpose of enacting odious political laws and making unnecessary appropriations.

First and foremost, if the republicans are allowed to carry out their programme, and they will not, unless the united legitimate efforts of the democrats shall fail to prevent it, will come the force bill, upon which the republicans are already banking to carry the Presidental election of '92—their leaders expect to loose the next House; but are raising a large fund to try and save themselves from defeat by the aid of the electoral votes of four Southern States which they calculate can be carried with all of the election machinery in the hands of unscrupulous Federal agents.

Next will come the Congressional and Electoral college apportionment under the new census, which is to be manipulated in the interests of the republican party. If only the question of right and precedent were considered this apportionment would be left for the Fifty second Congress to deal with—so it has been since the foundation of our government—; but the republican party has never been in the habit of letting little things like right and precedent stand in its way, and it is too late to expect it to reform now.

Incidentally it is proposed that a large number of bills carrying large appropriations which the shrewd leaders of the party temporarily side tracked early in the present session are to be railroaded through and in order to carry his programme out successfully a quarum of republican Senators have, according to Senator Frye, who ought to be good republican authority, agreed to adopt a gag rule for the Senate similar to the one with which Speaker Reed has bound the House hand and feet.

Another nice little scheme in connection with this recess business is, that the pretense is to be made that the measures in which Farmers Alliance and the Labor organizations are interested, similar to the compound lard bill, the amendments to the eight hour law, and to the alien contract law already passed by the house cannot be acted upon unless those extra three weeks are made use of. The object in this pretense is to try and make it appear to the farmers and workingmen that the democrats in opposing the Edmunds resolution are opposing the consideration of their interests.

Mr. Harrison has signed the meet inspection bill, thus giving himself greater power in a commercial sense, than is possessed by any European sovereign, with the possible exception of the Czar of Russia.

There is a rumor that the River and Harbor bill, which is now in the conference, is to go over until after the Elections, in order to keep down the present Congress.

Wall street pressure has made Secretary Windom issue a call for $20,000,000 more 4½ per cent bonds which will mature in September 1891. He offers to pay par and accrued interest to date of maturity.

Senator Morgan has presented to the Senate a resolution adopted by a mass-meeting of colored men at Birmingham, Alabama, against the passage of the Force bill. This added to the fact that a meeting of negroes at Philadelphia adopted a resolution declaring the passage of the Force bill to be impolitic shows that the negroes are not hankering after the "protection" which the republicans in Congress are so anxious to give them.

To day is "labor day", and it is being generally observed by the labor organizations of the city. They want Congress to make a national holiday.

The preliminary farce of depriving another democrat of his seat—Breckinridge, of Arkansas—is going on in the House to-day. It is hoped that his constituents will see to it that he comes back to the next House with such a big majority that even a republican election committee will not dare to question his right to represent his people.

Representative Cannon, whose vulgarity precipitated the rumpus which ended in a slugging match on the floor of the House last week, has thereby so endeared himself to Speaker Reed that he has been asked to go up to Maine and make some speeches in his district. It is to be hoped that he will not use the same language he did in the House.

Scrofula All His Life.

I consider my cure by S. S. S. one of the most wonderful on record. I had the worst type of Scrofula from my infancy until I was 22 years of age. My whole young life was embittered and made miserable by the loathsome disease. I not only suffered from the Scrofula, but was so marked that I was ashamed to associate with, and was avoided by, playmates and fellow workmen. I tried every known patent medicine and was first treated and attened by more than a dozen reputable physicians, but in spite of all, the disease continued to grow worse. About four years ago a friend from Pittsburg advised me to take S. S. S., which I did after taking seven bottles I was cured sound and well. The old skin peeled off and was replaced by a new skin, as smooth and free from blemish as any person. I have had no return or symptoms of the disease.

AN APPEAL TO VOTERS.

ISSUED BY THE STATE DEMOCRATIC SOCIETIES OF PENNSYLVANIA.

THE NEED OF REFORM IN POLITICS.

THE MANY WRONGS OF THE WORKINGMEN

The following circular has been issued by President Chancey F. Black, of the Democratic Society of Pennsylvania:

To the Democratic Societies:

At the meeting of the executive committee of the Democratic society of Pennsylvania, August 13, the next annual general assembly of the Democratic societies was called to meet on Wednesday, September 16, at the city of Reading the place having been determined by the last general assembly.

The annual general assembly of the Democratic societies at Philadelphia, in October of last year, was one of the most imposing representative meetings ever held in the state. It was composed of nearly 1,000 duly selected deputies of the primary societies—the flower of the earnest and aggressive Democracy of Pennsylvania. The proceedings of that great body and their influence upon the Democratic sentiment and organization, need not be recited. It was a day to be long remembered in the political history of our state. The first representative assemblage of popular Democratic socities, instituted under due authority of the regular organization of the party, and brought to-gether but a year previous under the constitution adopted at Harrisburg, it exhibited, in the most striking manner the devotion of our people, not only to the political principles but to the political methods of the Democratic party.

THE PARTY'S PAST RECORD.

The Democratic society is but the open parliment of the democratic people in their several neighborhoods. When the federalism of the last century, seeking centralized, corrupt extravagant and splendid government, at the expense of the masses of the people, threatened subversion, more or less complete, of the constitution then but recently established, the Democratic Societies sprang up in every part of the Union and by concerated voice and effort saved American institutions for that time. They elected Mr. Jefferson; they saw him seated, in spite of a corrupt and lawless plot to count him out and the popular triumph of that day was followed by half a century of constitutional governments peace and prosperity, under Jeffersonian policies, administered by Jeffersonian statesmen Such societies are the natural resort of freemen whose liberties are endangered. They are open to all who accept the immortal principles enunciated by Mr. Jefferson and illustrated by his administration. They would preserve the rights of the many, not the privileges of the few. In them the people meet, uncorrupted by money, unawed by bosses to defend their own rights and to protect their own interests.

The political situation in Pennsylvania to-day, more than ever before, invites, if, in truth, it does not require, the voluntary organization of the people for self-defense in the form which descends to us from our forefathers along with the principles of free government which they employed it to protect. If ever there was a time when every good citizen owed it to himself, his state, his country and his posterity, to repair to the Democratic societies and to enroll himself among the organized defenders of popular liberty, that time is now upon us.

WAGE EARNERS' WRONGS.

Systems of taxation, states and federal, grossly unequal in their operation almost avowedly designed to pillage the many and to enrich the few, to grasp the hard earnings of the scattered and unorganized masses and turn them over to the incorporated, or otherwise closely associated, classes, are not only boldly maintained by the party in power, but we are threatened with specific aggravations of them. At Harrisburg, as at Washington, the rights and the needs of the great multitude of wage-earners and land tillers are disregarded. The same political rings, which have pushed aside our state constitution, denied every petition of land and labor, strangled every measure of reform, promoted every scheme of oppression and corruption, and inflicted upon this commonwealth every wrong and shame it has endured for more than a century, is again seeking, under circumstances of special and wanton insult, a further lease of power. It is expected and believed that the great concourse of independent citizens and deputies at Reading, on September 16 and 17, will present the unmistakable answer of the body of the people to this remarkable assumption on the part of the common enemy.

While elections are free, the people retain the power of defense and redress in their own hands. But are they free here? Is he a freeman who approaches the polls in fear of another at the supreme moment in the year when his will is to be made potential by his vote? Is he a freeman, who, when he comes to deposit his balot, must pause to consider whether or not an honest vote will cost him bread and home, and, casting his family into the road, make him, instead of a respectable labor, a wonderer in search of work?

A SECRET BALLOT FAVORED.

Many thousands of Pennsylvania electors vote under this dreadful apprehension at every recurring election, and it is upon his power that monopoly and bossism principally rely in their struggles to maintain themselves with their special privileges, against the true interests of the people. Shall this continue? From every quarter of the state we hear the stern demand of labor, organized and unorganized—the multitudionous victims of this shameful correction—that it shall not continue. They asked to be enfranchised, that the right to a free vote shall be restored, with ample safeguards, so that every man in Pennsylvania shall be as independant as every other in the exercise of the sacred right of suffrage. To be free, the ballot must be secret, and to that end the odious marked ballot provision of our existing constitution must be removed. While it remains, while we have permanently incorporated in our system of voting a plan expressly designed for the identification of ballots—the very principle of exposure as against the principle of secrecy—there can be no such thing as elections, pure or free, in the state of Pennsylvania.

This is necessarily the great issue of the day. The bosses, realizing its tremendous force and the irresistible appeal which it makes to the better instincts of our race, confess the absolute necessity of the remedy, and, in the same breath, ask us to forego it and to submit meekly to the wrong for a further period of at least five years, when they vaguely engage that the Republican machine and the legislature may possibly grant some relief.

A CALL FOR REFORM.

But the wrong being acknowledged, the remedy obvious, the cause nothing less than the restoration of the whole people to their right of self-government with free choice of public servants, shall we abide the grace of the boss and the pleasure of monopoly, or will we take and enjoy our rights at once? The road is open and straight. No one can mistake it, and no one does mistake it. The election of the reform candidates for the state offices and of a majority of the reform candidates for the legislature will produce a call for an immediate constitutional convention to eliminate the marked ballot provision from our constitution, and to establish the Australian system of secret voting, making every man his own master at the polls.

With this free and secret ballot we need have no fear for the future, Whether Pennsylvania thereafter shall be Democratic or Republican, or neither, it will, at least, be a free state, and the Democratic societies, inspired by the faith of their forefathers, may look forward with confidence to the completion of their selfimposed mission, when there shall be no longer either a political or an industrial slave within the board limits of our commonwealth.

THE MINERS REVOLT.

WHY THEY REJECT DELAMATER AND SUPPORT PATTISON.

Interview of Hugh McGarvey, Chairman of the Legislative Committee of the Knights of Labor in the Ledger.

The sentiment there and in the immediate vicinity is strongly in favor of Pattison. I have been in Carbon, Luzerne, Schuylkill and Lackawanna counties since the nominations were made, and found the feeling intense. My correspondence with friends and labor men is very much to the same effect. I have yet to hear a working man, who knows "how many beans make five," stand up and defend Delamater. On the other hand, I have heard hundreds—and Republicans at that—denounce him and advocate the election of Pattison. It is not all love of Pattison, to be sure, as it is opposition to Delamater. Still, Pattison is extremely well liked by the mine workers and would receive a handsome vote from them, no matter whom the Republicans nominated.

The smallest part of the opposition to Delamater is the matter of what is called "Quayism." The greatest is concerning Delamater himself and the failure of the party which nominated him—and he personally and officially included—to give the relief and protection asked for by the working people of the State. Besides the more intelligent among the miners are satisfied that the charges made against Delamater in connection with the ore plug bill in the session of 1887 are true. This strengthens their belief in the further charges made against him by Senator Emery.

The key of the situation, however, is Mr. Delamater's record on labor measures last session. First he failed to vote for the factory inspection bill, giving protection and relief to the working women and children of the State. Next he voted against the employers' liability bill, but when he discovered that it had passed the Senate by two votes he changed his, because it is believed that, as a candidate for Governor, he saw it would never do to have the bill pass with his vote against it. Before that, as chairman of the labor committee, I went once or twice to Mr. Delamater's place and talked with him, but did so no more after this exhibition of statesmanship.

It must be noticed that Mr. Delamater's votes on the most important labor bills tally exactly with those of Mr. Watres, the Republican candidate for Lieutenant Governor. This may be a mere coincidence, and I believe it is, as far as the first two votes on the factory inspection and employers' liability, but believe that Mr. Watres, who is by far the brainiest, ablest and boldest man of the two, did in some measure lead Mr. Delamater in the vote against the anti-company store bill and the miners' dockage bill. Mr. Watres fought both those bills before the Senate, and, I say it fearlessly, in opposition to the will and best interests of the large majority of his constituents in Lackawanna county. Besides all this, Messrs. Delamater and Watres were both members of the Senate judiciary general committee that smothered the Farrell store bill and the semi-monthly pay bill, after they had passed the House by an almost unanimous vote.

The mine and mill workers of this State have their eyes open to the fact that Delamater and Watres, as leaders of their party in the Legislature, not only failed to have long prayed for legislation enacted, but they opposed it. No sane man will for a moment think that the miners will support candidates who so bitterly and heartlessly voted against bills that were to protect them against the extortion of company stores, the robbery of the dock boss and the relief that would come by the enforcement of a semi-monthly pay. As I said, there is a strong love for Mr. Pattison among the miners particularly, as well as among the working people generally, but after all it is not with us Delamater vs. Pattison, or the Republican party vs. Democratic party, as much as it is opposition to the men and the machine who had the power to give us the relief and protection asked for, but who denied our every plea, petition and prayer, and went even so far as to sneer at organized labor while opposing our bills on the floor of the Senate.

I have been a labor reformer, politically and otherwise, ever since my first vote, twenty years ago. I have never voted for a Democratic candidate—as such—in that time. I have, however, on several occasions supported the Republican State ticket, and frequently in local matters; but like thousands of those among whom I have spent my life, we have no more time for men or parties who preach us protection against foreign competition and then by their official acts, and against the expressed will of their constituents, subject us to the competition of foreign labor at our own doors, and the rule of monopoly.

Two Years Ago!

I was a sight to behold and was unable to enjoy life at all. Now I am the picture of health and can eat anything. What did it? Sulphur Bitters cured me of Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint, after suffering two years.—W. H. Bowman, Manchester N. H.

WHAT IS SCROFULA

It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which developes ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or the many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors;" which, fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can It Be CURED

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"My daughter Mary was afflicted with scrofulous sore neck from the time she was 22 months old till she became six years of age. Lumps formed in her neck, and one of them after growing to the size of a pigeon's egg, became a running sore for over three years. We gave her Hood's Sarsaparilla, when the lump and all indications of scrofula entirely disappeared, and now she seems to be a healthy child." J. S. CARLILE, Nauright, N. J.

The Great Benefit

Which people in run down state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictious strength, but Hood's Sarsaparilla builds up in the perfectly natural way all the weakened parts, purifies the blood, and assists to healthy action those important organs, the kidneys and liver.

The camp-fire of the Sons of Veterans was not a pecuniary success, owing to the rainy weather, but enough was cleared to pay expenses. Several prizes were offered of which G. A. The Bloom Band, Ent Post G. A. R. and the Sons of Vetrans went to Mahanoy City last week Thursday, it being Grand Army day. At Mahanoy Junction the band played while waiting for the train, and their music excited the admiration of the immense crowd waiting there. The boys report a good time at Mahanoy City, and say that the decorations were very elaborate and pretty. They were very hospitably entertained.

Louis Gross the New York clothier, and his father H. L. Gross of Danville, went fishing at Trench's dam on Monday. While attempting to cross the creek at the dam, Louis struck a slippery spot, and his feet flew from under him and he went over the dam. He had caught three fish, and was carrying his father's coat for fear that the old man might fall down and wet it. The coat was soaked and the fish were lost, and Louis says there were more dams than Trench's in the neighborhood about that time

Subscription papers have been circulated the past week to raise money to buy caps for the members of the police force. The town is big enough now to have its peace officers wear some visible mark of distinction other than the star that is usually covered up by the coat flap. If it is desirable for the police to wear caps, the town authorities ought to appropriate enough money to buy them, and not let the police go begging among private citizens for enough money to buy uniforms with. The fees earned by the police are too small to permit of much expenditures by them in the way of official decoration, but the amount required to buy caps would be very small to each taxpayer.

A subscription paper is in the hands of Moyer Brothers, asking for aid to the people whose property was damaged by the cyclone in the upper end of this county and lower Luzerne. Some of them have lost their all, and have no means to rebuild, and are homeless. Most of them are poor people who cannot stand the loss, and they find themselves helpless and destitute. Contributions will be received by Moyer Bros. for the sufferers, and forwarded to the proper parties. It is a worthy object, and those who are able should give liberally.

The Berwick Fair is being held this week.

A large audience greeted Mr. Frank Mayo on his first appearance in our city last evening. We had never seen the play before, and we may now say we have rarely been better pleased or entertained than by the faultless presentation. Mr. Mayo links so completely his own identity in the noble character of "Crockett" that one becomes unconscious of the surroundings, and is impressed with the reality of of the scene and persons. Nothing more natural, graceful, and freer from gush or rant have we ever seen on the stage than Mayo's "Crockett;" and, indeed we may say that so faithful a portraiture of a chivalrous, pure, and noble character is equal to a sermon.—Savannah (Ga.) News.

KILLED BY THE CARS.

SUICIDE OF FRANKLIN P. KLINE.

On Tuesday noon as the Bloomsburg & Sullivan train came around the curve at the rocks at the bridge, it ran over a man. He was seen by a little boy at Mr. Stiner's house near the bridge, sitting up on the rocks above the track for a couple of hours. As the train came in sight the man started down toward the track, and the boy called to him saying that the train was coming. This attracted the attention of Mrs. Sarah Stiner who came out on the porch and saw the man walking between the tracks and the rocks, and she called to him that the train was coming and he would get squeezed. He looked back at her and then as the train appeared around the curve he dropped on his knees and threw himself across the inside rail, in front of the engine. Mrs. Saran Stiner and Mrs. Mary Stiner both saw his movements, and saw the engine strike him. The whole train passed over his body literally cutting him in two, and severing his left arm. The engineer of the train was Philip Zeigler, the fireman was William Geise, and the conductor, J. W. Scott. None of them but the fireman saw the man, and he not until it was too late to stop the cars. Many of the passengers noticed the jar as the wheels passed over the body. The train was stopped, and the passengers and trainmen went back to the mangled remains, but no one recognized the deceased. He was well dressed in dark clothes, had on new shoes, and a black derby hat lay near. Thos. W. Conner of Orangeville was left in charge of the body, and conductor Scott sent a messenger for Esquire Jacoby, who summoned the following persons as jurors: Joseph Sharpless, G. W. Sterner, J. C. Brown, Dr. T. C. Harter, William Hartzel and G. G. Baker. They went down to the track and viewed the body before it was removed, and then it was taken to the undertaking rooms of Baker and McBride, and placed in an ice box. None of the jurors recognized the deceased. His face was black and his eyes protruded, and he was so disfigured that even when a postal card was found in his pocket addressed to Franklin P. Kline, they did not identify him. His name was also found on a piece of paper in his hat, but no one suspected who he was, though hundreds saw him as he lay there. He was finally identified by Frank Wilson, by his hat, his stockings and clothes, and the filling in his teeth. The terrible news was gently broken to Mrs. Kline, who is prostrated by the blow.

A hearing was held by Guy Jacoby Esq. acting as coroner, at his office at 2 p. m., and after hearing the testimony of the two Mrs. Stiners, a verdict was rendered that the deceased came to his death by throwing himself before the cars of the B. & S. R. R. Co. while temporarily insane. The railroad company was entirely exonerated from any blame.

Franklin P. Kline has been the bookkeeper at I. W. McKelvy's store for the past eleven years. For fourteen years previous to that he was a clerk in the store, and for all the time a trusted and faithful employee. By his industry and economy he had accumulated some property. He was married about fifteen years ago to Miss Ella Hay, who survives with one son, aged six years. His age was nearly 52 years. He was a son of Elias Kline of Rohrsburg, and a brother of Clark Kline of Espy, and Marvin Kline of Rohrsburg. He was always quiet and unobtrusive in his manner, and enjoyed the respect of all his friends. For some time his health has been failing, and he has been troubled with nervousness and indigestion. This no doubt was what unbalanced his mind and led him to self destruction. In his family he was a kind and indulgent father and husband. The funeral will take place on Friday at 10 a. m.

Some days ago W. H. Position of the Planets in September.

wins the place of honor on the planetary annals of September, though her great southern declination shortens her stay above the horizon, and brings her into unfavorable conditions for observation. She is however, a beautiful object to behold as she approaches the earth, increasing rapidly in diameter, and growing more intensely with the delicacy of coloring that is her marked characteristic. She reaches an epoch in her course, her greatest eastern elongation, on the 23d, at 11 h. p. m., when she is 46° 36' east of the sun. She no longer travels eastward from the sun, but, as if bound to him by an invisible chain, retraces her steps, increasing her speed, and taking on the form of a beautiful crescent, as she makes her way toward her period of greatest brilliancy.

Venus sets on the 1st at 8 h. 2 p. m. On the 30th she sets at 7 h. 15 m. p. m. Her diameter on the 1st is 20''.2, and she is in the constellation Virgo.

is evening star. He is superb as he pursues his course over his celestial path, in spite of his southern declination, becoming visible in the southeast before the twilight fades, reaching the meridian at 9 h. 40 m. p. m. on the 1st, and setting about three hours before sunrise. His course is retrograde or westward until the 28th, when he stationary, and after that time it is direct or eastward until the end of the year.

Jupiter sets on the 1st at 2 h. 20 m. a. m. On the 30th, he sets at 0 h. 20 m. a. m. His diameter on the 1st is 44''.6, and he is in the constellation Capricornus.

is evening star. He is in quadrature with the sun on the 21st, at 4 h. p. m., being then 90° east of the sun. He travels eastward during the month, and passes beyond the bounds of Scorpio, into Sagittarius, his approach to Jupiter being easily perceptible. His decrease in ruddy luster is noticeable, and his diameter has decreased nearly one-half since his opposition in May.

Mars sets on the 1st at 10 h. 37 m. p. m. On the 30th, he sets at 9 h. 58 m. p. m. His diameter on the 1st is 12''.0, and he is in the constellation Scorpio.

is evening star until the 29th, and then morning star. He reaches his greatest eastern elongation on the 3rd at 4 h. a. m. He is at that time 27° 5' east of the sun and may be picked up by sharp-eyed observers in the western twilight. He reaches inferior conjunction with the sun on the 29th at 2 h. 3 m. p. m., and completes his swift course as evening star.

Mercury sets on the 1st at 7 h. 16 m. p. On the 30th, he rises at 5 h. 30 m. a m. His diameter on the 1st 6''.8, and he is in the constellation Virgo.

is evening star. He is in conjunction with Venus on the 2nd at 4 h. a. m., being 2° 6' north. The planets will be near each other on the evening of the 1st, and be interesting telescopic objects.

Uranus sets on the 1st at 8 h. 11 m. p. On the 30th, he sets at 6 h. 23 m. p. m. His diameter on the 1st is 3''.5, and he is in the constellation Virgo.

is morning star. He rises on the last of the month two hours before the sun, and will soon be easily visible in the morning sky.

Saturn rises on the 1st at 5 h. 4 m. a. m. On the 30th, he rises at 3 h. 37 m. a. m. His diameter on the 1st is 15''.2, and he is the constellation Leo.

NEPTUNE

is morning star. He rises on the 1st at 10 h. 17 m. p. m. On the 30th, he rises at 8 h. 24 m. p. m. His diameter on the 1st is 2''.6, and he is in the constellation Taurus.

Uranus, Venus, Mars, and Jupiter are evening stars at the close of the month, Mercury, Saturn and Neptune are morning stars.—Scientific American.

Miss Lula Mendenhall, who has been at Eaglesmere for some time, returned home on Saturday.

George Hirleman, our oldest resident, has given his new house a coat of paint.

Our tax collector was terribly frightened the other night. He heard some one getting in the house through a window and the intruder was very quick in giving an account of himself. It proved to be his son, who had been away from home, but thought he would stay with his parents over Sunday. He, however, had stayed somewhere else until some of the early Sunday hours had passed quietly away, and thinking he could as quietly pass to his own room, tried it; but thinks he would rather make himself known a little sooner hereafter.

Pennsylvania Canal.

LITTLE HOPE THAT IT WILL BE USED MUCH LONGER.

HARRISBURG, Sept. 2.—For the past ten years the Pennsylvania Canal company has been steadily declining until now there seems but little hope that the operations over the canal will continue many years longer. For some years past the only part of the canal, with trifling exceptions, which has produced any net earnings, or has earned the cost of its annual maintenance, has been what is called "the main line," extending from Nanticoke to Columbia, a distance of 144 miles, which has continued to transport such coal as could not, from time to time, find car or other facilities by railroad, and, the increasing facilities and diminishing rates of the several railroad lines, there seems little probability of any increase in the canal tonnage. In 1889 many of the divisions were, to a great extent, destroyed by the unprecedented freshets of that date. The Juniata division from Newton Hamilton dam to Rope Ferry, a distance of fifty-six miles, was entirely destroyed. The West Branch division was destroyed to a considerable extent throughout, and west of the Loyalsock, was mostly obliterated. The Western division was destroyed, in the Eastern division damage was also done, but restored at a cost of $35,294 52. The West Branch division was also restored at a cost of $73,846.61, as far west as Muncy Dam, but all the portion west of Loyalsock has been abandoned. The company favors the abandoning and selling of all the canal but the main line. But, even if these parts of the canal, which can no longer earn their cost of maintenance should be abandoned and sold, there is at present a new and serious obstacle to realizing net earnings, even on the main line. This is due to a sudden advance made during the past year in its tolls on anthracite destined for tidewater by the Susquehanna Canal company, which is, in effect, prohibitory. This has induced the Susquehanna Coal company, which is substantially the only remaining anthracite canal shipper, to make new arrangements for all the rail transportation of its whole product, so far as destined for tidewater, which will probably curtail considerably the canal shipments to tidewater in future, even if practicable tolls should be agreed on.

In their report the company says that all the available money and credit have been exhausted in the repairs of the Eastern and lower West Branch divisions and the lower part of the Juniata division. It has been found impossible to borrow any considerable funds in view of the heavy mortgage liens now existing on the property, the annual interest on which largely exceeds the earning capacity of the company, even before the damage of this year, and it will be impossible to complete the repairs, until more funds or increased earnings can be procured or made available.

The only repairs made this year along the entire line was the building of a coal station at Harrisburg.

It thus appears that the future prospects of the canal are not very encouraging and that not many years will elapse before the Pennsylvania canal will become a thing of the past.

Pensions! Veterans!!

The Disability Pension Bill

Act of June 27, 1890. grants pensions to all ex-soldiers and sailors who served 90 days or more in the Army or Navy during the rebellion, and were honorably discharged, and who are now suffering from any permanent, mental or physical disability contracted since the war or during the war whether from disease, injuries or effects of old age, at the rate of from $6 to $12 per month, according to the degree of his disability for the performance of labor requiring the exertion of physical strength; provided the disability is not due to vicious habits. This pension is not restricted to the veterans who have to make their living by hard labor, but is equally due to professional men or clerks, provided they have an existing disability which would prevent the contiuuous exercise of the physical strength of an able-bodied man.

Those who have applied under the general laws and who are unable to prove up the pending claim can apply for and secure this pension and then continue the prosecution of the former claim and secure their arrears.

If you are now drawing a small pension, say $2 or $4 per month, you can take this pension instead, and if you have an application on file for increase or additional pension for new disabilities you can continue the prosecution of such claims while drawing the new pension, or you can file an original claim for a disability contracted in the service while drawing pension under this new act.

Widows, children, and dependent mothers and fathers are entitled under this act and can suspend the prosecution of any pending claim, and take this pension, and afterwards complete the prior claim and get arrears.

Having been duly appointed an Agent according to the rules and regulations of the Department of the Interior in the prosecution of such claims and having had success in a number of cases I am always prepared to give information and assist claimants, and will assure them success if they are able to establish the facts as required by law.

Those interested should call soon and claim their reward.

STATE TAXATION.

SENATOR BROWN'S ADDRESS TO THE FARMERS AT WILLIAM'S GROVE.

WILLIAM'S GROVE, Aug. 26.—Senator Gerald C. Brown, who is state lecturer of the Pennsylvania Grange, discussed the subject of state taxation before the farmers to-day at length. He said the necessity of uniting in one supreme effort for the correction of the unequal and unjust system of taxation prevailing in Pennsylvania had greatly increased by reason of the depressed agricultural interests. What could be tolerated in prosperous times could not now be endured, when the owners of real estate were not only called to pay their own taxes, but a large majority of that levied on other property holders. Real estate was taxed seventeen mills, but the holder of city and borough property could and did recoup himself to a large degree by making up for a tax discrimination against real estate by commanding correspondly higher rents. The farmer had no power to raise the price of his products and repay himself for increased taxes. It was evident, therefore, that the holder of farm property was at great disadvantage as compared with the holder of city or borough property in regard to this tax. As to other property but three mills were levied on it by any authority and that only for state purposes. Senator Brown called particular attention to the alleged fact that larger classes of corporate and personal property had within recent years been exempted from taxation by special legislation contrary to the express provisions of section 1, 2 and 3 of the constitution. A summary of these facts showed that less than $1,900,000 real estate paid all the local taxes and portion of the state taxes, while of not less than $2,300,000,000 of corporate property and interest bearing securities, all of which yielded larger net income than real estate, at least one-fourth of which was entirely exempted from all taxation, a levy of $4,500,000, or about two mills for state purpose is all that is asked as tax. The statements of the Senator were fortified by figures. Senator Brown then gave a history of the suspicious loss of the revenue bill which allowed the several counties one-half of the tax derived from licenses. The failure of this bill he strongly intimated was due to design instead of to an accident, and that the corporations were responsible for its loss. A history of the grangers' equalization tax bill was given for the instruction of the people who listened to his speech. The act was delayed as long as possible in the senate after it had passed the house by an overwhelming majority. The corporations did not think it worth while to prevent its passage in the lower branch of the legislature and postponed the application of their power until it reached the senate. It having remained in the hands of the finance committee long enough to endanger its passage at the last session, he offered a resolution to discharge the committee and give the senate an opportunity to pass on its merits, but only twenty-five senators voted for his proposition, or one less than required to take it out of the possession of the committee. The senator did not say that Senator Delamater, the republican candidate for Governor, assisted in strangling the grangers' pet measure, but left the audience to draw its inferences. The resolution for the creation of a mixed commission to draft a new revenue law he said was a sop to Cerberus, but it was also a public confession on the part of the leaders who were responsible for the defeat of the bill that the present tax system is outrageous and that it could not be endured. Senator Brown counseled the grangers to put men in offices of trust who had stood by them, and to condemn those who had done otherwise. "If they do not stand by the men who, at every sacrifice to themselves, have fought the great aggregation of corporate power that has ever stood in the way of justice to the people," said Senator Brown, "they do not deserve, and are not likely to hereafter have competent champions of their own interests."

In the evening Colonel William Penn Lloyd of Mechanicsburg, the democratic candidate for state senator in the Thirty-second district, spoke on "Signs of Encouragement for the Farmer," after which a concert was given.—Patriot.

Broken Hearted.

The sorrows of childhood are real enough while they last. Happily however, they are not only brief, but often so much on the surface that even the sufferer hardly knows what they are about.

A small girl ran to her mother the other day, sobbing as if her heart would break, and burying her head in her lap cried out that she would never, never play with her sister Emeline again.

"Why, my child, what has Emeline done?" the mother asked.

"Oh, mamma, she has said something that has just broken my heart," the child declared, sobbing yet more violently.

"What was it?"

The child paused a mement in the midst of her wild weeping as if trying to think; then her tears burst forth afresh.

"Oh, mamma," she cried, "I can't remember what it was, but it was so cruel that she has broken my heart."—Youth's Companion.

While Ireland Starves.

LONDON, Aug. 25.—A cry of indignation has been caused among the poorer classes by the discovery that hundreds of tons of fish are destroyed weekly at the Billingsgate market in order to enable dealers to keep up an agreed schedule of prices. This wanton destruction of food at a time when special attention is being called to the prevalence of starvation in London and Ireland causes a feeling of horror which extends beyond the limits of the classes most severely affected, and philanthropists are endeavoring to devise some means of removing the barrier which the fish trust has erected between the starving people and nature's bounty.

A Strange Malformation.

Boise county, Idaho, has, a sheep that is the property of James Johnson, of Round Valley, and was a year old on the 23 of May. It has but two legs both on the hind part of the body, and constantly walks erect, much after the manner of a kangaroo. The legs and tail are smooth as those of a dog, not showing the least trace of wool. The head is wooly and is provided with but one eye, which solitary optic is set in the center of the head. The shoulders and the place where the forelegs should be are as woolly as the head, extending back to where the smooth, doglike hair begins.—St. Louis Republic.

"THE KING'S TOUCH."

In England, two centuries ago, popular superstition credited the "Royal Touch" with curing scrofula. These superstitious practices have now become obsolete, and in their place we have a scientific remedy in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which eliminates the impurities from the blood by the natural channels, thereby cleansing the system from all taints and impurities from whatever cause arising. It is truly a royal remedy, world-famed and the only liver, lung and blood remedy guaranteed to benefit or cure in every case, or money paid for it will be refunded. As a regulator of the Stomach, Liver and Bowels, "Golden Medical Discovery" cures all bilious attacks, Indigestion and Dyspepsia, Chronic Diarrhœa and kindred ailments. As an alterative, or blood-purifier, it manifests its marvelous properties in the cure of the worst Skin and Scalp Diseases, Salt-rheum, Tetter, Eczema, and Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, as well as Lung-scrofula, commonly known as Pulmonary Consumption, if taken in time and given a fair trial. WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Proprietors, Buffalo, N. Y.

Cap Was With Him.

THE STRANGE EXPERIENCE OF A FUNNY MAN ON A STEAMBOAT.

The captain stood in front of the pilot house, telling the man at the wheel what he ought to do from time to time, and the funny man stood close by with his overcoat buttoned up and his hands in his pockets.

When the funny man had kept still long enough he spoke to the captain.

"Cap'n," said he, "why do you tell him to keep her to port, and then asked him to keep her steady? She'd keep steadier if she kept clear of the port, don't you think?"

"Have to keep her to port so she'll keep away from the bar," replied the captain, as he raised his glass and gazed anxiously ahead.

The funny man shrugged his shoulders, walked away a few steps, returned and asked the captain if they kept the vessel's log down among her beam ends.

"No," said the captain, "we keep it in the log cabin."

"I've often wondered,' said the funny man thoughtfully, "why the wheels of a steam boat dont work together."

"They do."

"Do they? I thought they took turns. How'd you tear your coat, cap'n?"

"Caught it on one o' the points o' the compass."

Then the funny man walked around a little while. By and by he stood stock still.

"Cap'n," said he, "this boat is advertised to run, but she only just keeps up with the walking beam. How's that?"

"Well, I dunno," replied the captain; "she's got a mate running with her and she keeps up with him easy enough. I b'lieve this wind is hauling around so'-west."

"The mate has the advantage of the boat in one respect, I suppose," remarked the funny man; "he's amphibious, isn't he?"

"Am what?"

"Why, he can run on land just as fast as in the water."

"So can the boat. I can run her ashore in a minute and a half if I want to."

"Your boat is very polite, captain, I must say that."

"How so?"

"I saw her bow when I came out on the dock this morning.

"Oh yes, certainly—hark a minute!"

"What is it?"

'Did you hear her yawl?"

"No! What time is it, cap'n?"

"Ten minutes past. By George! this is the mate's watch. Mine ends at 5 o'clock," exclaimed the captain, and he went off to find the mate, while the funny man, muttering something about that chap being pretty fly for a skipper leaned over the rail and thought over the hull business—Morris Waite in Detroit Free Press.

Clarence (courting Miss Alice, observes that her little toddler of a brother has been staring at him from the drawing room doorway quite five minutes)—Why do you look at me so, Tommy?

Visitor—I've not seen any of you for ever so long. How is your little brother coming on, Tommy?

Tommy—First rate. He can whistle for himself and wear my pants.—Texas Siftings.

Youngest Son—Papa, did you throw stones at apples when you was a boy? Father—No, I threw a stone into a peach tree once and what do you think?

Son—You broke a window!

Father—No. I knocked a peach and on opening it found the stone.—Wasp.

To Be a Good Teacher.

Good health is particularly necessary for the teacher, as the labors of the school-room draw so constantly and heavily on the vocal, mental and nervous forces. Teachers need to be continually on the guard against anything which can interfere with their physical well-being. This precaution has also a moral significance and importance.

Of course, the more liberal and thorough the education, the better the foundation on which the teacher's work is based; but there have been many great scholars who have proved very poor teachers, for the possession of knowledge by no means implies the ability to impart it. It is safe to assume that natural talent in this direction is the best possible test of the "born teacher." In addition to what is usually included in a liberal education, a knowledge of the comparatively modern science of psychology is indispensable, familiarity with the development of mind, the material upon which the teacher exclusively works. If she succeeds in her work without this knowledge, her success will result "more from good luck than good looking to," or be the outcome of a happy intuition which, unfortunately, few possess. This branch of science has but lately been accorded its proper place in our curriculum, but every day strengthens its claim to be considered the cornerstone of every educational structure.

Martin Luther asserted in his cast-iron style of rhetoric, "Unless a schoolmaster knows how to sing I think him of no account." Such a test would materially decrease the number of pedagogues; nevertheless, it is true that such ability is of the greatest service to the teacher. The physical benefit resulting from singing is sufficient reason for its use, even if no other existed; but it is peculiarly valuable as a source of enjoyment to children, and a great aid in the preservation of order. Even a little knowledge of drawing places a mighty power in the hand of the teacher. Nothing so much helps to make instruction clear and impressive as simple and rapid illustration, particularly in the primary grades. At present these two accomplishments—improperly so termed, for they are really essentials—are required in most schools. The children of to-day, who are the teachers of to-morrow, are receiving thorough instruction in these two matters, and experience proves that it is almost as instructive for them to sing and draw as for a bird to fly.—Caroline B. LeRow, in Ladies' Home Journal.

Apropos of the present necessity for the separation of families by the often continued absence of the husband on the road, I know a little anecdote of a youngster who had seen so little of his father that he did not know him and when, one Sunday morning, this same little fellow, being obstreperous, was severly reprimanded by his impatient father, he went howling to his mother with the wail, "I ain't goin' to git licked by that old duffer who spends Sunday here."—Toledo Journal.

There are no less than thirty different religious castes in India, and when the railroads were first established no two castes would ride in the same coach. The natives found it inconvienient, however, and now all sorts of castes mix up for a journey, but offset it at the end by calling each other dogs and infidels.—Detroit Free Press.

Mourning Customs.

When Rome was an empire the males wore black for mourning, while the women indicated their grief by wearing white garments. In turkey at the present day the mourning hue is violet; in China, white; in Egypt, yellow; in Ethiopia, brown, in Europe and America, black. The mourning color in Spain was white until changed by the laws of 1498.—St Louis Republic.

Selby—They say that husbands and wives grow to look like each other as they grow older.

Ponsonby—Is that so? What a splendid composite photograph old Plentypop would take, then! He's been married nine times.—Burlington Free Press.

"I is—" began Tommy, when the teacher interrupted him.

"That is wrong, you should say 'I am.'"

"All right," said Tommy. "I am the ninth letter of the alphabet."

"Will you love me when I am old?" sang a maiden of uncertain age.

"Will I?" murmured a crusty old bachelor. "Do I?' you mean."—Washington Star.
